Foreword

The VitalStats: Public Higher Education series was launched in 2012 with VitalStats 2010, and is now into its fifth edition. The Council on Higher Education (CHE) has found that the series has been well received by the sector, with researchers and other interested stakeholders making extensive use of the data. The series provides recent, audited data on the higher education sector in an easy to use format. VitalStats 2014 contains data for the period 2009 to 2014, which is the latest audited data available for the sector. The CHE hopes to extend the publication to the private sector when the necessary audited data is available.

The majority of the data used are collected through the Higher Education Management Information System (HEMIS), and the CHE appreciates the Department of Higher Education and Training's (DHET) assistance in collecting and extracting these data and for providing other necessary financial and research information. Thanks are also due to the National Student Financial Aid Scheme (NSFAS) and Statistics South Africa for providing relevant data.

The publication starts with four sections on student data, namely (i) overall enrolments and completions; (ii) enrolments and completions by qualification type; (iii) by field of study; and finally (iv) by institutional type. Student data is followed by a section on data on staffing at public universities. The sixth section of the publication consists of cohort analysis of students who began their studies in 2009, tracking their respective throughput rates both at undergraduate and postgraduate level. Owing to the different mode of study (distance and often part-time) at the University of South Africa (UNISA), which impacts on the time it takes a student to graduate, data for UNISA are considered separately in this section (as indicated on the relevant graphs). The final section of VitalStats provides financial and research output data. The publication includes a glossary based on HEMIS definitions.

The CHE is grateful to Charles Sheppard for compiling the necessary cohort studies and for some financial information, and to Fiona Lewis for data on the full cost of study. The role of the Monitoring and Evaluation Directorate staff, particularly Michael Gordon, in developing VitalStats is appreciated. The CHE welcomes any suggestions or requests for additional copies of the publication. Please direct these to Genevieve Simpson at Simpson.g@che.ac.za. The publication can also be downloaded from the CHE's website (www.che.ac.za).

Definitions

Block grant:

State subsidy to universities is divided into block and earmarked grants. Block grants are consolidated into a single transfer and the funds can be used for any legitimate university purpose. Currently block grants have four components: teaching input (based on enrolments), teaching output (based on graduations), research output (based on approved publications and research masters and doctoral graduations) and institutional factors (based on institution size and proportion of historically disadvantaged students).

Classification of Educational Subject Matter or CESM categories:

A set of classifications aiming to provide a single coherent system for categorising subject matter irrespective of the level of instruction or type of institution. For a list of first-order CESM categories, see Appendix 2.

Cohort:

The first-time entry students in a given year who have enrolled for a particular higher education programme.

Comprehensive Universities (Comp):

This refers to institutions that offer the full spectrum of programmes, including vocational, professional and general formative programmes at both undergraduate and postgraduate levels.

Contact mode of delivery:

This refers to courses involving personal interaction with institutional teachers or institutional supervisors, through lectures, tutorials, seminars, practicals, supervision, or other forms of required work, which occurs at the institution's premises or at a site of delivery of the institution.

Course success rates:

The success rate refers to the total number of courses passed by students in a given academic year relative to course enrolments. It is calculated by dividing the total number of FTE degree credits (courses completed) by FTE enrolments. These calculations, for a programme or for an institution as a whole, produce weighted average success rates.

Distance mode of delivery:

This refers to courses where the interaction with institutional teachers or institutional supervisors is undertaken remotely through the use of correspondence, telematics, or the internet.

Earmarked funding:

State subsidy to universities is divided into block and earmarked grants. Earmarked funds must be spent on the purposes for which they are designated. In recent years, some of the categories for earmarked provision have been interest and redemption of government loans, infrastructure, teaching development, research development, foundation courses, clinical training of health professionals and veterinary science.

Field of study:

Enrolments are divided into four broad fields or areas of study, calculated by aggregating enrolments by CESM category as below. For a description of each CESM category, see Appendix 2:

- Science, Engineering and Technology (SET): CESM 01, 02, 06, 08, 09, 10, 13, 14, 15 & 16
- Business & Commerce (B&C): CESM 04
- Humanities (Hum): CESM 03, 05, 11, 12, 17, 18, 19 & 20
- Education (Ed): CESM 07

Full Cost of Study (FCS):

The FCS is defined as the cost of registration, tuition, accommodation, books and meals as averaged per student per university.

Full-time equivalent (FTE):

FTE student enrolments are calculated (a) by assigning to each course a fraction representing the weighting it has in the curriculum of a qualification, and (b) by multiplying the headcount enrolment of that course by this fraction. FTE staff numbers are calculated in a similar way.

Gross Domestic Product (GDP):

This is the total market value of all goods and services produced in a country in a given year. The GDP includes all consumer, investment and government economic activity during that year. The value of exports is added to GDP and the value of imports is subtracted.

Headcount:

The total number of students enrolled at each institution whether as full-time, part-time or occasional students.

National Student Financial Aid Scheme (NSFAS):

NSFAS is the South African government student loan and bursary scheme which provides loans and bursaries to students at public universities and colleges.

Nominal and real funding:

Nominal funding refers to the actual amount of money given to a specific activity in Rand value for that specific year. Real funding relates the funding of a particular year relative to a base year, taking inflation into account. Real funding allows for a comparison of purchasing power over time as increases and decreases are compared to the base year.

Occasional student:

This is a person who satisfies the statutory requirements for entry into a formally approved qualification offered by the institution and who is effectively registered for an approved course, but who is not registered for an approved qualification. It includes persons enrolled for non-degree purposes.

Participation rate or Gross Enrolment Ratios (GER):

This is total headcount enrolment over the national population of 20-24 years old, calculated as a percentage. The term used by the Department of Higher Education and Training is participation rate. The National Plan for Higher Education (Department of Education: 2001) explains that: "The participation rate is calculated using the UNESCO standard, as the percentage of 20–24 year olds of the general population enrolled in higher education".

Percentage accumulative (for Cohort Study):

This indicates (in the relevant graphs) the total number of students of a particular first-time entering cohort who have graduated or dropped out up to that point. It includes all the students of that cohort who have graduated or dropped out in previous years.

Percentage non-accumulative (for Cohort Study):

This indicates (in the relevant graphs) the total number of students of a particular first-time entering cohort who have graduated or dropped out in that particular year. It does not include the students of that cohort who have graduated or dropped out in previous years.

Permanent employee:

A person is classified as a permanent staff member if he/she contributes to an approved retirement fund of the institution.

Personnel categories:

The personnel category indicates the type of duties to be undertaken in a position which a staff member occupies in the institution, and the qualifications and experience normally required by the incumbent of that position. The duties, qualifications and experience referred to relate to those of the position. The personnel categories are:

Instruction/research professional (Academic): A position in which (a) at least 50% of time is spent on instruction and/or research activities, and (b) the position requires a higher education qualification equivalent to at least 4 years of higher education study.

Executive/administrative/managerial professional (Senior Management): A position in which (a) the primary function is the management of the institution or one of its major divisions or sections, and (b) the position requires an educational attainment equivalent to at least 4 years of higher education study.

Non-professional administration (Administrative): A position in which (a) the primary function is clerical, secretarial or administrative duties, and (b) an educational attainment equivalent to 4 years of higher education study is not required.

Service staff: A group of staff for whom the primary function comprises unskilled activities.

Postgraduate:

Postgraduate qualifications include Postgraduate Diplomas and Honours, Masters and Doctoral degrees.

Qualification:

A qualification is the certificate, diploma or degree which an institution awards to a student on the successful completion of an accredited programme of study of 120 credits or more.

Qualification types:

This refers to the different types of certificates, diplomas and degrees offered by higher education institutions that conform to the specifications for nine such types on the Higher Education Qualifications Sub-Framework (HEQSF). An explanation of the types of qualifications and requirements for the awarding of the qualification can be found in the HEQSF.

Research development grant (RDG):

The RDG is part of the earmarked funding budget which the state provides to public universities for the purpose of developing research capacity at the institution. Institutional research output targets are used when calculating the funds available for RDGs, but the formula used means that if some institutions produce above their target, the total amount for RDGs decreases, thus reducing the value of the RDG unit. Plans for spending RDGs need to be approved by the DHET before the funds are paid to the institution.

Research output unit (RO):

The research output unit is a proxy for the amount of research produced, calculated for subsidy purposes. Public universities accrue research output units based on the number of publications and graduate outputs produced in a specific year. The Policy and procedures for measurement of research output of public higher education institutions (2003) determines the number of units awarded for different recognised publication types.

Staff members:

A staff member is a person who is either compensated by the institution by pay or other means for services rendered, or who, while not being paid or compensated by the institution, performs services which relate to the institution's normal activities and those activities which would otherwise have been performed by staff receiving compensation from the institution.

Student: staff ratio:

This refers to the average number of students per academic staff member and gives an indication of the average teaching load carried by each academic staff member. It is calculated by dividing the number of FTE academic staff by the number of FTE students.

Temporary employee:

All staff members who do not contribute to an approved retirement fund of the institution are classified as having temporary employment status.

Third stream income:

This refers to all university income derived from sources other than state subsidy or student tuition fees. It is also sometimes called private income. Sources of third stream income are diverse and can include donations or endowments; money earned through contract research or entrepreneurial activity; and income from investments.

Throughput rates:

The throughput rate calculates the number of first-time entry undergraduate students of a specific cohort of a specific year who have graduated either within the minimum time, or up to 2 years beyond the minimum time, to the number of students in the baseline enrolments of that cohort. Throughput rates are reflected in the section on cohort studies.

Traditional Universities (Trad):

This refers to institutions that offer a broad range of general formative and professional programmes at both undergraduate and postgraduate levels.

Undergraduate:

A student engaged in an undergraduate qualification at a university, namely a first or entry qualification, including certain certificate programmes, diplomas and Bachelor degrees.

Universities of Technology (UoT):

This refers to institutions (previously called Technikons) that offer a range of programmes that are vocationally and/ or professionally-orientated, primarily at the undergraduate level.

Weighted research output:

Research funding for public universities is based research output units accrued by an institution in a specific year. Units are awarded based on the number of publications an institution produces as well as the number of research masters and doctoral graduates in that year. When calculating weighted research output for the given year, the number of doctoral graduates is multiplied by three, while the units for publications and research masters graduates are multiplied by one.

Cohort methodology and list of specific knowledge areas included in the broad fields used in the cohort study

Methodological note for cohort analysis

Based on CESM categories and qualifiers, qualifications were recoded into uniform qualification names for the purpose of uniformity and to reduce the number of groups to be analysed. These groupings are shown in this Appendix.

Student cohorts were then defined and identified as follows:

- At undergraduate level (for first qualifications), a cohort comprised the first-time entering students in a particular year who were selected as the new entrants.
- For honours and postgraduate diplomas and certificates the cohort comprised new entrants made up of students from all three categories; namely, first-time entering, transfer and entering.
- For masters and doctoral students all students who had not been enrolled in the previous year were deemed to be new entrants.

Any student in a cohort who graduated before the minimum expected duration of a qualification was deleted from the cohort on the assumption that the entrance category of the student was incorrect, or that the student had carried credits into the qualification being analysed.

Two types of analyses were performed:

1. Where cohort analyses were performed by uniform qualification name, any student who discontinued his/her studies in a particular uniform qualification during the period analysed was counted as a drop-out for that particular uniform qualification classification.
2. An analysis was also done ignoring the uniform qualification classification, and any student who qualified in the same qualification type i.e. degree or diploma of any sort, was counted as a successful graduate. This analysis showed slightly higher completion rates. Students who discontinued their studies in the qualification type being analysed and who moved to a different qualification type e.g. from a degree to a diploma, were seen as a dropout for the degree, but a completion for the diploma.

In both analyses, students who discontinued their studies during the period of analysis and then returned (stop-outs) were discounted against the number of drop-outs in the year that they returned. This accounts for the negative dropout numbers shown in some graphs. They were counted as successful if they graduated during the period analysed.

While analysis was undertaken with respect to UNISA, there are too few years of data available in the cohort studies to make an appropriate analysis of UNISA's completion rates. UNISA's cohort analyses are further complicated by the fact that large numbers of students interrupt their studies for a number of years.

*Please note that all extended programmes were excluded from these groupings.
